Growers Warehouse To Expand To Meet Increased Business.

The Growers Tobacco Warehouse Company at their last regular annual meeting decided to enlarge their facilities for handling loose leaf tobacco, hence their dividend this year did not come up to that of last season, holding back the money to make these improvements. They will shortly begin to excavate under the present warehouse and put in a waterproof concrete basement. This will almost double their facilities for handling loose leaf tobacco, enabling them to clear the floor immediately after each sale.

HOSPITAL NOTES.

Mrs. Dr. W. C. Patton was received Monday and will be operated upon some time this week.
Mr. W. W. Baldwin, of the county, was received and will be operated upon this week.
Little William Gray is in the hospital having his hip attended to.
Mr. John Burgess, of Tuckahoe, was operated upon at Hayswood Hospital Monday by Dr. W. H. Tanbree. He was resting easily at last reports.
Mr. E. Purdon, of the East End, was operated upon at Hayswood Hospital Monday by Dr. A. O. Taylor, for appendicitis. He is doing nicely.

CAPTURES THIRD ROBBER.

The police Monday afternoon captured Hogan Gilbert, wanted for participating in the attempted holdup of Stanley Cobb last Saturday night. Chief Mackey and his efficient corps of police officers deserve credit for the quick work in capturing these bold highwaymen. Such crimes as that of Saturday night make it unsafe for people to even walk on the streets.

Miss Grace Kubel has accepted a lucrative position with F. H. Traxel Company.

Monday, while at work upon Mr. Rollie Franklin's house, in Eastland, Contractor James Brown, aged 35, of 200 East Second street, fell off the eaves of the house upon a pile of lumber and broke two ribs on the right side. Mr. Brown was conveyed to his home and Dr. Courtney McGuire attended to the injured man, who was resting easily this morning.

Funeral from the residence this morning at 10 o'clock, with services by Rev. Caswell, of the M. E. church, South. Interment in Maysville cemetery.

INJURED.

Little Leslie Worthington, the 11-year-old daughter of Hon. and Mrs. E. L. Worthington, of this city, was injured while indulging in a game of "swing turkey" with her schoolmates Monday, being thrown against the curb and suffering a slight concussion of the brain. Dr. W. H. Tanbree administered to the bright little Miss, and she is resting nicely this morning.

DECLARE DIVIDEND.

The Home Tobacco Warehouse company declared a 6 per cent dividend Monday and ordered the following improvements made: New roadway, enlargement of floor space, etc. This warehouse is the largest tobacco warehouse in the world and is noted for its high prices and large sales, as Monday's action shows.

DISORGANIZED

Is the Auto Mail System On Routes 1 and 2 Out of Maysville—Patrons Will Be Forced To Seek Some Relief

Mail matter on Rural Routes No. 1 and No. 2, which formerly left the Maysville postoffice at 11:30 every morning, now leaves at 1:30 p. m., as was briefly stated in The Ledger two weeks ago. This plan practically ruins the service to over 300 patrons on the two routes, as they now get their mail late in the afternoon, and the return mail now goes to the Maysville postoffice too late for the out-going train mail.

The change is so unpopular that every patron on the two routes has signed a petition urging the postoffice officials at Washington to return to the old method of leaving the Maysville postoffice at 11:30 a. m., as formerly. Not a single patron on the two routes is in favor of this new-fangled plan.

There is nothing progressive in it. The carriers do not favor it. It is the most unpopular thing that has ever done on the Maysville rural routes.

COUNTY COURT.

Court met at 9:30 a. m. Monday, with Hon. W. H. Rice presiding. On motion of Carolina B. Downing, the court ordered that J. W. Downing be appointed administrator of the estate of Minerva Bayless, deceased. He qualified as such with H. C. Sharp as surety on bond.

H. C. Sharp, J. B. Durrett and D. R. Newell were appointed appraisers of the personal estate of Minerva Bayless, deceased. Allie C. James was appointed administrator of the estate of Thomas R. James, without surety. J. F. Barbeur, Charles Wright and James Child were appointed appraisers of the estate of Thomas R. James, and produced an appraisement of the property, which was entered filed.

The court heard arguments upon same and will render a decision today.

SAVOYARD ON CHAMP CLARK.

And what a pity that this fine man allowed the Presidential bee to get into his bonnet! He thinks and most people think he narrowly escaped the nomination at Baltimore. That is a great mistake. He never stood the slightest chance to get that nomination. Underwood was the dangerous man all the time.

But that is ancient history. Champ Clark writing his book will be a happy man. In the White House he would be the most miserable man who ever held that great place. He is not emphatic enough when saying "no" to be President.—Savoyard's Washington Letter.

VIM MAKES A WAY.

There is nothing else today, besides honesty, that is in such sharp demand as vim.

Every employer is looking for it; everybody believes in it; the man who has it usually makes his mark.

The world steps aside for the man with vim; he outstrips men of far greater ability who are lacking in this essential.

Resolutions, however good, are powerless without the energy to execute them.

Vim clears the track. People get out of the way for it.—Elmira Star.

Some Wise Policemen.

A few years ago two Irishmen, with not too much knowledge of police duties, gravitated into the Maysville Police Department. They were assigned to a residence district. "Mike," said one of them when they met a few days after they had been on watch. "I've been over on your beat and there is a dead horse on it." "Well, what'll we do?" Mike asked. "Why, don't you know?" Pat replied. "You must make a report and send it in to the station." Mike: "Where is the horse?" Pat: "Over there on Preznysl street." Mike: "What street?" Pat: "Preznysl." Mike: "How d'ye spell it?" Pat: "I don't know." Mike scratched his head for a moment, deeply perplexed. "Oh, I've got ye," he said finally. "Let's drag the horse over to Oak street. It's only a square away. I can spell 'Oak' all right."

Beautiful Home For Sale

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dawson have placed with us for sale their new home on East Second street, in the Sixth Ward. This home is located on a large lot, 72x150 feet, and running back to Williams street. We will not make any attempt to describe this home in detail. It is built of pressed brick, with hardwood floors, basement under the entire house, slate roofing, hot water, furnace, gas all over the house, and in fact, is modern and complete throughout, and must be seen to be fully appreciated. This beautiful home has been admired by all who have seen it, and every Maysvillian is justly proud of such enterprising citizens, as the builders of this property. Mr. Dawson's health is such that his physician has advised him to spend his winters in the South, and for that reason he offers his home for sale at less than cost, $6,500.

LAEMMLE, FILM MAN

Is Called the Little Napoleon of the Moving Pictures.

Universal City, California, the Latest Monument to His Talent—Town Is Peopled by Movie Men and Women.

Carl Laemmle, the founder of Universal City, has done much toward the advancement of moving pictures. Those who have come in contact with him know what a great leader he is.

This "Little Napoleon of the moving pictures," as his friends call him, arrived in America twenty-five years ago in steerage without money and ignorant of the language and customs of this country. Beginning as errand boy, he rose through various employments to the management of a large retail clothing store in Oshkosh, Wisconsin. His great virtue was for saving what he earned.

With the ambition of youth he always longed for something bigger and better and was ever on the lookout for an opportunity. He dropped into a moving picture theater in Chicago when that popular pastime was being introduced to the amusement seeking public. He became interested and believed that it was the opportunity he was seeking and made up his mind to enter the field as an exhibitor. Mainly on his nerve, for he had small capital, he opened a theater in Chicago in a desirable locality and it proved successful from the moment the doors were thrown open. A month later he had another theater in profitable operation. Then he branched out into the renting end of the business, which required that he buy a stock of film. This grew very rapidly and within three months the first Laemmle Film Service was incorporated.

With the development of the moving picture business there came into existence a combination of manufacturers who, basing their contentions on patent rights, endeavored to keep others from manufacturing moving pictures. This combination of ten manufacturers closed the market of the United States so tightly that an independent found great difficulty to either make or market his film. However, American made goods was what the people wanted. In order to avoid buying from these manufacturers, and against the advice of his friends, who thought it would ruin him, he organized the Imp Film Co. It was a rather difficult task that Mr. Laemmle picked out for himself, for back of the manufacturers of the combination was unlimited capital, and the talent and ingenuity such resources can command. On his side were only his confidence and ability and certainty of the feasibility of this plan, which was shared by few of those who would profit most from its success.

The first picture that Mr. Laemmle put on the market was a big success. It was one of the best pictures ever flashed upon the screen up to that time.

The brand of film turned out by Mr. Laemmle was a success from the very outset. However, a contending factor arose in the shape of an injunction issued by the supreme court in favor of the combination, restraining him from using the best cameras which were then available. In order to avoid any legal entanglements Mr. Laemmle took his companies to Cuba and continued making the same quality of film he produced in New York city. Later he was instrumental in bringing about the amalgamation of the leading independent companies, and in 1912 became president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

One of the first accomplishments of this company was the establishment of a large ranch in Los Angeles for the production of moving pictures. This ranch grew to such enormous proportions that it was finally conceived and decided by Mr. Laemmle to erect a city devoted exclusively to the making of pictures.

The population of Universal City is composed entirely of moving picture people. The mayor, chief of police and all city officials are chosen from among them. There are writers, directors, players, mechanics, carpenters, property men and other workmen, a small army of trained soldiers, cowboys, Indians and hundreds of extra people. Plays of every description are produced there and sent to all parts of the globe.

LEAST EXPENSIVE.

A newspaper of average circulation visits more people in one day than a single canvasser could in five years. Or again, suppose you had to send letters to the same number of people you reach by one newspaper advertisement; think what it would cost. Newspaper advertising is the least expensive and most productive of all forms of advertisement.

MAY PROVE FATAL

When Will Maysville People Learn the Importance of It?

Backache is only a simple thing at first; But if you find 'tis from the kidney; That serious kidney troubles may follow; That dropsy or Bright's disease may be the fatal end; You will be glad to know the following experience.

"The statement of a Maysville citizen.

Mrs. Della Lunsford, 328 E. Front St., Maysville, Ky., says: "I attributed kidney trouble to a strain. I had sharp, shooting pains through my kidneys and a dragging down feeling through my hips. I had dull headaches and dizzy spells and often if I had not caught hold of something for support, I would have fallen. I was in that condition for several years, up one week and in bed the next. I finally began to notice symptoms of dropsy and in a short time I was suffering from that trouble. My feet began to swell and my hands were at times the same way. At night I was restless and always felt tired. I read of a similar case being cured by Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a supply. Before long I was completely and permanently cured. Doan's Kidney Pills saved my life. I am glad to confirm my former endorsement of this remedy."

A HINT TO PUBLISHERS OF BOOKS ON THE WAR.

The Bible.—This masterpiece contains the first prophecy of the great struggle now being enacted in Europe, anticipating Bernhardt by almost two thousand years. Although little read in America, it was very well known to Nietzsche, and one of its characters is frequently alluded to by the Kaiser in his speeches. It contains many stirring songs of battle.

The Divine Comedy.—Alighieri Dante. A book that consumes unusual importance at the present time in view of General Sherman's well known statement about war. Special diagram showing the future dwelling places of European rulers.

Paradise Lost.—John Milton. A magnificent epic dealing with the first great war. A sympathetic human touch is added in the love story of Adam, an English Puritan, and Eve, the First Lady of the Land.

Commentaries.—Julius Caesar. Vivid notes on the Gallic Wars by the first general who was his own war correspondent. Many uncensored details about the characteristics of the Germans and Belgians.

NO BEAUTY WITHOUT HEALTH.

Health is the source of beauty, and every rule for beauty is simply a rule for health. A girl can not have a firm, elastic body, a clear skin, a fine color and bright eyes unless she exercises, sleeps and eats profusely and sufficiently. All these outward charms appeal to the eye, but how much deeper and most lasting is the impression when there is beauty of character as well. It is not strange how persons who seem plain and unattractive to the casual eye, soon often, become absolutely beautiful to us in their revelation of character. And how some whom we consider beautiful at first, when better known, seem only ugly and unattractive, because of some defect of character. Character will out. We may try to hide our defects, but it is useless. We may deceive for a time, but ere long we are known and valued for what we really are in spite of our efforts and pretense.

THROUGH THE VALLEY OF THE SHADOW.

(By Rev. John Barbour, D. D.)

The Sunday schools had for their lesson Sunday the Twenty-third Psalm. We copy from the Christian Observer the following beautiful illustration of one of its great passages from the pen of Dr. John Barbour, of this city:

Several years ago I had the privilege of visiting the studio of that gifted sculptor and delightful gentleman, Mr. Edward Valentine, in Richmond, Va. Taking me through his gallery of finished work, he showed me several of the masterpieces in which he seemed to feel particular pride. I recall how he lingered before the group of Andromache and Astyanax of the Homeric mythology, interpreting its details to me.

Heeter has just bidden farewell to his wife and child, and is going to meet Achilles without the walls of Troy in an encounter from which he is never to return. The artist has wrought the story into the countenance of Andromache as she gazes wistfully upon his retreating form and into the face of Astyanax, looking up and scrutinizing with puzzled expression the features of his mother. He has divined the brooding anxiety at her heart, and is pleading to know what is giving her such pain. Meanwhile upon the folds of their garments, unseen by them, are gathered little symbolic figures, throwing their comment on the parting. From the hand of Andromache, abstracted by her grief from what she is doing, has dropped the distaff, its threads lying loosely upon her lap, and a lizard, emblematic of the grave, crawls up the folds of her skirt to bite the thread suggesting the chord of life, in two.

The whole is a powerful image of the despair about the future in which heathenism left the minds of its most gifted representatives. Andromache has no thought but that, if Hector is slain, it is to be an everlasting separation. At the most it could be only a hope little lifted above despair. "I have the counterpart to this in mind," said the sculptor. "It is the figure of the Christian pilgrim walking through the valley of the shadow of death. A serpent crosses his path and a skull is lying near his feet, and the ceremonies of the grave are all about him, but Christ mingles confidently on. In his hand is the staff given him by his Savior, and on his uplifted forehead there falls the light of the resurrection glory, though his lower members be steeped in the gloom of the grave. Even the night has become light about him."

I have very inelegantly reproduced from memory what even then I could poorly conceive of the artist's rapt dream of faith. I never heard that he ever embodied his idea in the stone, but I felt absolved now from the pledge of secrecy given until he could give it to the world. I have often thought of the artist's contrasted figures as a most striking presentation of the difference between the Christian and the worshipping as both face death. The most gifted of earth, without Christ can only look forward to the despair that invests that scene in Hector's home, whilst the humblest believer in Christendom contemplates death with serenity. He can say with David: "I will fear no evil; for Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me." Maysville, Ky.

IF I WERE A SALESMAN.

If I were a man with goods to sell, And landed a chance my tale to tell, To a man with power to buy; I never would talk about shows and things, Or give my views on warring kings, While the precious minutes fly. With a funny yarn I would not begin, But right from the jump I would buckle in.

To tell of the goods I had, My competitors I'd never knock, But I'd boast the quality of my stock, And get out my order pad. I never would waste his time or mine, In chatting of weather, bad or fine, Or arguing politics; I'd waste no talk on a tale of woe, Or bring out a deck of cards to show. A few of my clever tricks.

The war that's on I would quite forget, And the tariff, too; and the nation's debt.

Though the times are out of joint, I'd start right in from the jump to dwell

On the articles I had there to sell, And I'd talk right to the point. And I'd pass up religion and lodges, too; And art and science and novels new, And the women that I had met, I'd stick right close to my little job, And make no mention of Tyra Cobb.

Or friends in the upper set; I'd business do in a business way, And I think I'd find my scheme would pay.

But still, if my goods be spurned, I'd travel on with this thought sublimed.

That I had been digging at all the time, And had left no stone unturned.

THE HEN AS A POSSIBLE TYPHOID CARRIER.

The problem of the carrier in various infectious diseases has long vexed the sanitarian who is bent on discovering every possible mode of transmission and every portal of entry for the germs. Human carriers of typhoid and diphtheria germs, themselves immune to attacks of the malady, are now watched for in nearly every community, and the danger which they represent as a latent source of infection is clearly recognized. Doubtless, says the Journal of the American Medical Association, many of these possibilities for spreading disease without the presence of detectable symptoms are still unrecognized. In typhoid, it has been shown that some of the lower animals may in made typhoid carriers; and attention has lately been directed to such animals as might be expected to become carriers by reason of their environment or habits. Mitchell and Bloomer of the bacteriologic laboratory of the University of Missouri have pointed out that the chicken is a domestic animal which might often come into contact with typhoid discharges. The mechanical transference of typhoid bacilli on the feet and bill of a chicken does, without question, occur. By various methods they have attempted to follow the germ. From the work of the Missouri bacteriologists it would seem that the hen is highly resistant to typhoid. It not only fails to take the disease, but apparently can not be made a carrier except in a mechanical way.

A DUTIFUL HUSBAND.

A man who had overestimated his capacity for the number fluid was arrested on the street for improper conduct. In the police court the next morning the usual charge of intoxication was filed against him, and he was fined $5, which he promptly paid. This done, he went out with a very worried expression on his countenance, only to return a few minutes later and cautiously approach the clerk.

"Please, sir," he said, "would you just give me a receipt for that $3 I paid you? I want to show my wife that I didn't spend all my money for drink."—Success Magazine.

POLITICS.

While the candidates are spilling and arousing real fire feeling with hot speeches which beseech us to reflect before we vote, most men need some true pathfinder to escape from each spellbinder whose words sting and mud-slinging seek to get some brother's goat! How they rave about the platform, stride upon each other's flat form, as they wonder how in thunder any one can have the nerve to make a try; when with blundershot and what-not seeking scalp and wildly screeching, slinging mud, forego preaching, every man a villain, deepest dye! Fields the mayor has forsaken, neophytes have undertaken, to recover for their own; all old timers, on the level, 'twixt the deep sea and the devil, wait upon the stridings in the bush. All unselfish, anti-pelfish, seeking only to do right, they would forego compensation for the sake of reformation, take the push! They would never, never fool us, but to save us they would rule us, perching virtue, white-winged goddess, up above the city's door! Scorning politics and scoffing, scenting office in the offing, save us save us they implore.—Contrib.

NEAR DEATH BY SMOTHERING

But Husband, With Aid of Cardui, Effects Her Deliverance.

Draper, N. C.—Mrs. Helen Dalton, of this place, says: "I suffered for years with pains in my left side, and would often almost smother to death."

Medicines patched me up for awhile but then I would get worse again. Finally, my husband decided he wanted me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, so he bought me a bottle and I began using it. It did me more good than all the medicines I had taken.

I have induced many of my friends to try Cardui, and they all say they have been benefited by its use. "There never has been, and never will be, a medicine to compare with Cardui. I believe it is a good medicine for all womanly troubles."

For over 50 years, Cardui has been relieving woman's sufferings and building weak women up to health and strength. If you are a woman, give it a fair trial. It should surely help you, as it has a million others.

NOT AS MUCH INSANITY ON FARMS AS IN CITIES.

The following is an interesting little editorial taken from the current issue of Farm and Fireside.

"A few years ago some one made the statement that insanity was more prevalent in rural communities than in the cities and towns. Everybody has believed it and tried to account for it. 'It was loneliness.' 'It was the hard work imposed by the farm on the farmer's wife. 'It was a dozen things. 'And now we discover that it was a mistake.

"The News Letter of Ohio State University calls attention to the fact that according to the census of 1910 the number of persons admitted to institutions for the insane out of each 100,000 of farm people is 41, and for the cities and towns, 86, and adds: 'It is therefore, now the farmer's turn to ask the urbanites, 'Who's loony now?'"

New York City has advertised nationally for a secretary of its committee on social welfare, the salary to be $5,000 a year.

DAM NO. 33

Now Great Industrial Camp—One Hundred and Fifty Men At Work—Contractors Pushing Things While the Pushing Is Good.

Work is progressing rapidly and soon will be going full blast.

Yesterday The Ledger man started up to Dam No. 33 and found things booming there. Over 150 men are busily engaged and the place resembles a bee hive.

The men all seem satisfied and their treatment, from their answers, is of the best; something which you do not often see in a large camp.

NOTES.

The carpenters are building a gaso line tumbler, sixty feet long. When finished, it will be equipped with a sixty five horse-power engine and will be used to convey material from one point to another.

The steamer Frank Tyler is back, after a hurried trip to Ashland to bring down some more material for the dam.

The coffer-dam is already built out 200 feet. It is twenty-five feet wide and will be filled with sand, etc., until it is able to stand the pressure, then the water will be pumped out and real work will begin on the foundation of the lock, etc.

A narrow gauge railroad has been built from the top of the river bank to the coffer-dam and will be used to haul dirt for the walls of the coffer-dam.

Over 150 men are at work upon the dam. Many more will be put to work in a few days.

The Maysville Street Railway is putting on trailers on the street cars for the benefit of the men who work on the dam.

Bates Rogers stand for cleanliness, as in the near future a large number of shower baths for the employees will be built.

Over 300 feet of two-inch pipe is being laid for the conveyance of water.

A water tank sixty feet high, holding about 25,000 gallons, is being built upon the hill back of the dam. The water from the well will be pumped to this tank and then distributed by gravity all over the works.

About fifteen hoisting engines are on the grounds, ready for work. They will be used for many purposes, pumping, etc.

Mr. J. G. Hirsch, civil engineer, has arrived here to take up work on the dam.

Mr. H. A. Murray, head of the commissary department, served supper to about sixty men Monday. The Ledger man being an invited guest. Here is the menu:

Beef Steak
Mashed Potatoes
Boiled Cabbage
Stewed Prunes
Doughnuts
Cakes
Ponches
Coffee

The supper was laid in the large dining hall and everything was spotlessly clean, orderly and the best of service was maintained.

Geo. then "eats" tasted good after that long walk.

HEARD ABOUT TOWN

Col. W. W. Lynch, one of Maysville's most estimable citizens, who has been on this earth for more than eighty years, came near passing over to the other side Sunday, via the water route in a bath tub. The venerable gentleman was making great preparations for his bath, when in some unaccountable manner he slipped into the bath tub, and came near drowning before he could extricate himself. For a time he was frightened almost to death, but now he laughs over the episode, when relating his experience. We congratulate the Colonel on his close shave, and trust he may long be with us.

On Monday a certain gentleman of the clerical cloth, was in one of Maysville's leading hardware stores, eyeing things here and there, and handling articles that were lying loose to attract customers. He espied a nice looking ax handle and picking it up, swung it around two or three times, and then started to strike it over a box that was near his feet, but changed his mind. About this time the proprietor of the store came along and remarked to him, "Reverend, we just got that box of dynamite in this morning. There is enough dynamite there to blow up half of Maysville." Beads of cold perspiration quickly gathered on the brow of the reverend gentleman when he realized how close he had been to striking that box of dynamite. He promises not to strike "inanimate" things lying loose until he learns the contents. A narrow escape for him and the clerks, on Monday.
